Lake Host Program at Dublin Lake

By Bill Goodwin

As mentioned last month, we have Olivia Thomas back as a lake host this summer. In addition to Olivia, we will have Genna Weidner as our second lake host. Genna is a ConVal student and has been involved with a variety of school activities. We look forward to having Olivia and Genna working at the boat landing on weekends during much of July and August. They will be wearing their blue NH Lakes jerseys and caps while on duty.

Training for the lake host position will involve attending a training session in Concord on June 5th. The staff of NH Lakes will provide hands-on training regarding identification of invasive plants and how to conduct a voluntary search of boats and trailers for unwanted vegetation. We have been very fortunate to have boaters on our lake who take measures to assure that their boats and trailers are free of vegetation.

Please stop by the boat landing and welcome Olivia and Genna when they start working on Saturday, June 29.

BILL GOODWIN is Point Person for the Dublin Lake Host program.

Dublin Summer Playground begins on June 29th and runs to August 12th. It runs from 9 am to 3 pm weekdays. Registration forms can be picked up at the Town Hall.

News from the Dublin Consolidated School

By May Clark

The month of May went so fast, and now it's almost time for summer vacation! The last day for students is June 14, earlier than usual. The last two weeks are always filled with wonderful events, like the graduation for fifth graders, field day, and our first annual Art Day. Carole Storro, our art teacher, and Jeannie Connolly, ConVal Arts Enrichment Coordinator, are planning a day of art activities for all the students, culminating in an art show to display the day's projects. It's Tuesday evening, June 11, 5-6 pm — all are welcome!

Meanwhile, in May we completed the year's testing and then enjoyed some special fun. Grades 1, 2, 4, and 5 went to Boston for the day on the 21st. The younger students spent the day at the Boston Aquarium, and the older kids walked part of the Freedom Trail, as the culmination of our revolutionary war study. Third graders completed a wonderful community project, where each student interviewed someone from the community. We found a lot of friends, and the kids had a great time. Our kindergarteners have made huge strides this year, and are getting ready to move up to the world of first grade.

May also brought us two days with artist Mark Ragonese, who has visited DCS twice before. We always love to have him in our building, and the creations from the children under his guidance are something to behold. We are especially grateful to the Dublin Women's Club, which has given us a donation to help us pay for Mark's residency.

Coming up is our Spring Social — June 7 from 6:30-7:30 — we love to see everyone!

Who Pays for What

By Fiona Tibbetts

Hello fellow Dubliners! One of Dublin's finest was honored at last month's School Board meeting. May Clark was selected for the prestigious Chairman's Award for her long and illustrious service to the district. Joann Hopkins, longtime administrative assistant at Dublin Consolidated School was among the first ConVal employees to be honored with an award a year ago.

You may have read elsewhere that some district residents are upset that the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce has canceled this year's Independence Day fireworks at the high school. The School Board has approved a plan to maintain and improve the parking lots and baseball field at the high school and this work conflicted with the traditional celebration, leading the Board to turn down this year's permit application. The issue has raised a more general question about the appropriate uses of school property and who should pay for non-educational uses.

As a member of the Budget & Property subcommittee, I will be asked to weigh in on establishing a fee schedule for use of school facilities by outside groups. The Board has an existing policy that calls for the collection of fees, but it appears that most if not all groups have historically been exempted. Those arguing for continued free access point out that taxpayers pay for the schools so all should have the right to access. On the other side are those who argue that the incremental costs associated with maintaining the buildings and grounds after hours should fall to those users and not the entire tax base.

I'm inclined to side with the latter. If we are going to reverse the trend of ever-increasing costs per student, we need to look at all cost savings and revenue enhancements. Invariably this will lead to subgroups of constituents losing out on some benefit, but we'll only make progress if we keep our eye on the prize of the best education for the lowest dollar.

Coming back to the fireworks: everyone likes a good fireworks display, but every year the crowds damage the athletic fields. Do you think the Board should go back to allowing the displays next year, even if it means extra costs for the district? I'd be interested to know what you think about the district subsidizing community groups through use of school property.

Dublin Rotary Park Spruced Up By DS Students

Thirteen students and three teachers of the Dublin School participated in a cleanup at Dublin Rotary Park on Earth Day, April 22. The event was a part of Dublin School's scheduled activities to commemorate Earth Day.

Katri Jackson, chair of Dublin School's Science Department, and Jerry Branch, Monadnock Rotary member and park developer, coordinated the event. Work on the warm and sunny day centered on clearing and stacking brush from around the edge of the meadow and the trails.

Jack Lewis, Chair of the Dublin Conservation Commission, guided the crew to the various areas needing clearing. Rusty Bastedo, a member of the Conservation Commission, and Ramona Branch worked alongside the students. Supervising the students were Dublin School teachers Jonathon Weis, John Emerson and Rick Connell.

"The students made a significant contribution," Branch said. "We are looking forward to their continued help in making the park more attractive and accessible. Hopefully the students and Dublin residents will really enjoy the park this summer."

Painter Edith Tuttle portrayed Dublin machinist John Albano at his 70-year-old high-precision Monarch lathe, as part of Edie's Classic Crafts of New England series. The Sharon Arts Center in Peterborough is now showing Edie's new oil paintings of the water-powered Daloz mill in Hancock, and of the millworkers' brick boarding house in Harrisville. (John's portrait — and other paintings in the Crafts series — are for sale at Edie's Windmill Hill Road studio).

BOS: School Crossing & Phase II Traffic Calming

By Sterling Abram

It is an appropriate time to report on the status of two projects that are scheduled for the Town of Dublin.

First is the building of a new crosswalk and walkway to the elementary school that will provide a State-approved pedestrian access across Route 101 from the sidewalk to the Dublin Consolidated School. A grant was applied for and received for this project, and the Town of Dublin voted to expend the funds. In an attempt to save money on the project, the Town sought to gain approval for having our own highway department do the bulk of the work. Eventually, though, even though State regulations clearly accommodate that approach, the attempt had to be abandoned because of conflicts between the regulations that allow it and the actual implementation of the plan. Work will now be done by a private contractor. Engineering is complete and State approval for the design is expected within a few weeks. This approval will allow for bids to be solicited so that this work can go forward this season while school is in recess.

The second project is the second phase of highway and sidewalk changes in the town center that are planned for pedestrian safety and traffic management. This will extend the improvements of the first phase westward to include the intersection with Old Common Road. Funds for this project were also obtained through a grant and subsequently approved by the Town. The process of approval for engineering study proved to be more complicated than Phase I because of new requirements enacted by the federal government, so this project has taken longer than expected to commence.

Currently there is still a slight chance that it will be built in 2013, but it is very likely that construction will have to take place in 2014 instead. The funds are not in jeopardy, and planning and design will continue. Whenever the preliminary design is approved, a meeting will be called for residents to hear a review of the design and offer comments on the plans. We are hopeful that this will take place soon, but since this project has suffered many unanticipated delays we expect to experience more. Please feel free to inquire about any specifics at any time.

STERLING ABRAM has been a selectman of Dublin since 2006.

Dublin Women's Club News

By Jill Lawler

Twenty-six members and guests enjoyed a delicious dinner and fellowship at DelRossi's on April 30 for the club's annual meeting. The membership voted new membership fees for 2013: the cost to join the Women's Club will be $25; anyone wishing beach privileges will pay an additional $100.

Invitations to join the Club have gone out. If you did not receive an invitation and wish to join, contact Treasurer Nancy Campbell. If you have questions about financial assistance, contact Jill Lawler (924-7675).

The Dublin Women's Club has donated $741 to Dublin Consolidated School to support their enrichment programs. $500 will support the art residency of Mark Ragonese. The balance of the money will be invested in the school's garden structures — as well as some worm farming equipment to help in their continuing work with the Cornucopia project. The money for these projects comes from the interest generated on the James Fund that was bequeathed to the Club in the early 1970s by Mrs. Frederika James and money donated in memory of Glenna Eaves who for years had a relationship with the children at DCS.

The Beach Committee will be selling plastic reusable water bottles with the beach logo to encourage our members to cut down on waste.

We need volunteers to set up the beach equipment on Sunday, June 9 beginning at 10:30 am; lunch will be provided to volunteers. Bring work gloves, rakes and shovels. We have also scheduled a second day, Saturday, June 15 (if needed), beginning at 10:30 am. We will make every attempt to have lifeguard coverage at the lake beginning on June 17; lessons will start June 27. Polly Seymour and Liz Lawler are returning for another season as our lifeguards and Trenton Mills will once again be our sailing instructor. We hope to see you all there.

Dublin Baseball's Field of Dreams

By Rusty Bastedo

Readers of the June 2012 Dublin Advocate were informed that volunteers were coming together to help renovate and restore Dublin Baseball Field, located on Church Street behind Town Hall. Work began in Spring 2012 with contributed efforts by Eric Amundson, Dean Setzler, Brooks Niemela, Jamie Kierstead, Shawn Macy and Rich Scheinblum; it continues in Spring 2013 with Tim Rousseau (volunteer tractor work), Tom Knight (volunteer chainsaw work), Frank Colon (overall work), and others. At a recent Board of Selectmen's meeting, Rich Scheinblum presented information on the current status of the Dublin Baseball Field restoration/renovation project.

His hope is to expand the use of Dublin Baseball Field, possibly following a 1930s architect's drawing that includes a town playground on the property. During the Great Depression years dollars were hard to come by, and the plans were never acted on; Rich feels that now may be the time to develop the area as a well-equipped town resource.

Land for Dublin Baseball Field was sold to the town of Dublin by a resident of Miami, Florida, for one dollar, on October 1, 1930, but did not give the Town of Dublin all the space needed for the 1930s architect's drawing to be fully implemented. Mike Worcester recalls that his parents gave the town a little bit of their adjoining land at no cost, and he thinks that the Dublin Baseball

Sam Scheinblum and his dad, Rich, at the field.

Field was a WPA project, possibly 1936-1937, although records are not definitive. The WPA was certainly doing projects like Dublin's all over the country (and putting eight million unemployed Americans to work in the process).

The current work on the infield began in spring 2012. As of May 2013, 50 tons of "baseball dirt" have been brought in (thanks to a $1500 donation) and another 100 tons of "baseball dirt" are needed for the field, according to Rich Scheinblum. Twenty companies and individuals have expressed support for the project as of early May, and work on rebuilding the infield and pitcher's mound is set to start in early fall. This year the field will have to be enlarged as well: the Cal Ripken League has expanded 2013 field dimensions for "Majors" games (players aged 11-12), and our "Majors" team is playing its home games at Hancock this year because of the changes mandated by the League.

Dollar estimates for all the work have not been made, and it remains a question whether the 1930s plan for an entire playground is realistic today. Some costs may be defrayed by selling advertising space on outfield walls, as has been done in many other towns, according to Rich Scheinblum. But work on Dublin Baseball Field is under way, and Advocate readers should stay tuned for further updates! Every New Hampshire youth had dreamed of "the crack of the bat at Fenway," and the dream continues.

RUSSELL BASTEDO, who served as New Hampshire's State Curator from 1997 to 2009, has been on the staff of the Advocate since its inception.

The Wrights' Service to Town

By Margaret Gurney

As Story and Tom Wright graciously welcomed me into their home, their Bernese Mountain dog, Oliver, did the same. With a terrific view of the lake from the west as a backdrop, Tom recounted his early years visiting Dublin from Keene as early as the '50s. His first civic duty was on the Planning Board, a highlight of which was Dublin's first real Master Plan, "the first serious one," as Tom put it. They had help in those days, much as now, from the Southwest Region Planning Commission. "It helped shape the direction of Dublin," he explained. And ever since then, Tom and Story, who married in the '70s and have five children between them, have innumerable years in various forms of service to our fair town.

Tom went on from there to serve on the Zoning Board of Adjustment, which he chaired "for a long time." He praised other members of the board with whom he worked including but not limited to Will Oja, Bill Barker, Suzan Dennis, Mr. O'Rourke, and others. "We had a good board," Tom recalled.

TOM WRIGHT

- Planning Board member 1972-1977 (Secretary for some of that time).
- Zoning Board of Adjustment member and Chairman 1978-1986; 1991-2000.
- Dublin Lake Preservation Committee 1997-2008 (Chairman 2000-2008).
- Tom is a descendant of Thomas Morse, the first permanent settler in Dublin!

Tom also worked on the early Transportation Committee, collaborating again with the Southwest Region Planning Commission, to help determine this region's needs for transportation, which remain a challenge to this day. He resigned after a 10-year plan was completed.

Story has also given of herself to this community in more ways than one. Many will recall her most recent involvement with the Beech Hill/Dublin Lake Watershed Association, a 501 (c) 3 organization that formed and culminated in the fundraising for the subsequent purchase of the Beech Hill property in 2007, which was transformed into a conservation easement with the Monadnock Conservancy. Currently home to trails and views as far as the eye can see to the south and east, the property once threatened with commercial development is safe for all to enjoy, and the

Story organized the planting of flowers in the Oval for the Sesquicentennial, the 250th celebration of the founding of Dublin, which the town celebrated in 2002. She also served on the Cemetery Committee, a position she recently left and Bruce Fox has filled.

Going back in time, Story was a frequent volunteer at Dublin Consolidated School when her children, Kate and Will, attended and she served as representative to the ConVal School Board for two terms (six years). "We had a wonderful superintendent in those days, Bob Reilly, and his assistant, John Carr. They were a great team," Story recalled.

Since 2008, Story has been serving on the board of the Monadnock Conservancy, which has had such a positive impact on Dublin and surrounding towns in the Monadnock Region. As for her part, Story simply states, "I did whatever I could that the town needed me for." She speaks for Tom as well in that regard, and Dublin is the better for their efforts.

MARGARET GURNEY is editor of the Advocate.

Children's Sunday at DCC

The Dublin Community Church will celebrate Children's Sunday on June 9, at 10 am. The Sunday School children will lead the entire service. The theme will be a liturgical journey through the church year – the Eight R's: Remember, Review, Rejoice, Reveal, Reflect, Renew, Receive and Respond! This is the day that the children are celebrated for their participation in church life with the presentation of the traditional Cross and Crown award pins. The town is invited to this most meaningful service and to the All Church Picnic following worship.

News from the Food Pantry

The Dublin Community Church donated 469 lbs. of food the first quarter of 2013. All good food, nothing expired! Thank you all. During January, February and March, we fed 2,639 people (from 15 different towns), of which 98 were senior citizens, and gave out 18,765 lbs. of food.

Please drop food off at the Community Church whenever you think of it.

Peter's Ponderings

If something good could possibly result from the marathon bombings, it could be that our own police, so often taken for granted, are getting recognized for their guts and their dedication.

I was especially impressed by the coordination among all the police departments and agencies involved in the extraordinary capture.

PETER HEWITT retired to RiverMead a few years ago along with several other former Dublin residents.

Jean Barden Joins Advocate Staff

By Jeanne Sterling

What a nice way to spend a rainy, chilly Saturday morning... Chatting up my neighbor and long-time friend, Jean Barden!

I easily remember what brought Jean to Dublin — her marriage to Brian 45 years ago this June 29th. The two met through mutual friends while Jean was a student at Keene State College. After graduation, she returned to Barrington, NH (her hometown), and taught school in Dover, NH.

Once married, the couple settled into their home on Upper Jaffrey Road, next to Friendship Field, and they have lived there ever since. Jean continued her teaching career at the Dublin Consolidated School for five years, transferring to the New Ipswich school district for one year. In 1981, Jean began working for the U.S. Post Office, juggling hours between Dublin and Peterborough, and finally settling in the Jaffrey Post Office in 1992 until her retirement in 2006.

Jean and Brian have two children, Melissa and Jason, both residents of Dublin, and three grandchildren; Sierra (18), Shelby (17) and Alexander (11). Oh yes, and a wonderful kitty, Lyle, who visits us often for ‘treats’.

Throughout the years past and present, Jean has been involved with the Dublin Women’s Club and the Dublin Community Preschool during Jason and Melissa’s attendance there. Jean is currently Chairman of the Steward’s Committee at the Dublin Community Church and is very active in Church affairs.

Jean shares Brian’s interest in antique cars, often attending Cruise Night at Kimball’s Drive-In during the summer months. The couple can be seen enjoying the scenery in either their 1914 Model T touring car or the 1914 Model T Speedster. They belong to a Central N.H. Model T Group, Yankee IngenuiT’s and Autoneers (pre-1916 autos).

We all welcome Jean to the Advocate staff and look forward to her input and fresh ideas for the publication.

JEANNE STERLING is advertising coordinator for the Advocate, and writes for it frequently.

Upcoming Community Conversation to Focus on Monadnock Region's Future

By Tara Germond

Residents, business owners, municipal officials, parents, youth and others are invited to participate in a community conversation about the future of the Monadnock Region on Thursday, June 6, at the Peterborough Town House from 6 pm to 8 pm.

This conversation is an opportunity for neighbors to speak with neighbors about the challenges and opportunities facing our region now and into the future and to consider the question: ‘How can we make the Monadnock Region the best place to live, learn and work for everyone?’

The thoughts and ideas shared at this conversation will help inform Monadnock Region Future, an initiative facilitated by Southwest Region Planning Commission to develop a regional plan for the future of the 35 communities of Southwest New Hampshire. The regional planning process is an opportunity to identify actions that could be taken to help the region’s communities keep what is valued, increase economic opportunities and plan for the future. It examines the connections within and between communities, and the connections between land use, transportation, economic development, housing, public health, energy, and natural resources.

Monadnock Region Future is committed to the idea that the best public decisions are made when the people who will be affected by these decisions are heard. “The outreach work that’s part of this process is going to be a terrific asset to our communities,” says Elaine Levlocke, a Selectman in Chesterfield. “We want every person to have the option to give input and help identify the issues facing our town, the region and the whole state. Our population is decreasing and young people are moving away. We need to hear from everyone and find ways to make it more possible for young families to stay here if they want to.”

To register for this conversation, please contact Tara Germond of Southwest Region Planning Commission at tgermond@swRPC.org or (603) 357-0557. This conversation is free and open to the public. To learn more: www.granitestatefuture.org/regions/southwest-region.

TARA GERMOND, a granddaughter of Jane Thorne Kauppi, has been Senior Planner for the Southwest Region Planning Commission since June of 2009.

Rabbit Ear Films Launches Indiegogo Campaign

Just $15,000 needed to complete documentary on Monadnock.

By Steve Hooper

Rabbit Ear Films, a local non-profit film-making company, launched an Indiegogo Fundraising Campaign on May 1 to help complete the documentary on Mount Monadnock, America's most climbed mountain.

Monadnock-The Mountain That Stands Alone, a feature-length high-definition film, is in the final phase of post-production when taped interviews of first person stories about the mountain are combined with still photographs, video taken on the mountain, narration and music. Research and production are completed. This has been a three-year effort with film completion targeted for the end of 2013.

The Indiegogo crowdfunding campaign, where people contribute to the film project online in whatever amount they choose, will continue through June 14. All contributions will be tax deductible. To make a donation, visit <http://www.indiegogo.com/projects/monadnock-the-mountain-that-stands-alone/x/2733517>. You can also find this link at www.monadnockfilm.com.

The Rabbit Ear film crew has experience in producing quality documentary films and Monadnock-The Mountain That Stands Alone, will be presented at film festivals, schools and historical societies. The group also will seek presentation on PBS.

Indiegogo, the largest global crowdfunding platform, empowers individuals and organizations — it is the equal-opportunity platform dedicated to democratizing the way people raise funds for any project — creative, entrepreneurial or cause-related.

Monadnock at Home

After holding informational sessions in Peterborough, Harrisville and Fitzwilliam, our membership has doubled since our inception two and a half years ago. We now have 80 household memberships, comprising 117 individuals. Many of those members came in May to enjoy the MaH sponsored viewing of "The Age of Champions" movie. Members laughed and cheered and left with healthy recipes and new easy exercises to work into their daily routine.

Our volunteers have also been busy, lending a helping hand to our members. Our volunteers will help with outdoor spring chores like lawn cleanup or screen door installation, transportation to appointments, computer assistance and so much more. If you are a member, do not hesitate to give us a call. And if you are not a member, these are just a few of the things MaH can help you with; please call us to learn more. Our volunteers are a key part of our team. If you are interested in volunteering for Monadnock at Home we would love to hear from you.

Olga Litvintsova Performs in Dublin

By Barbara Summers

People often ask me "Who is Olga, and how did you find her?" Olga Litvintsova, violinist, came to the United States in '05 from the Ukraine, having been invited to join the faculty of the Royal Music Academy, in Worcester, MA.

Previously, Olga was a violinist at the Donetsk Philharmonic Orchestra, with whom she toured extensively in Russia, Spain, and Italy. She appeared as a soloist with the Rhapsody Chamber Orchestra, in Donetsk, Ukraine, from '98 to '01. She holds a Masters of Music from the Prokofiev Conservatory (Donetsk, Ukraine, '01), and a Graduate Performance Diploma from the Boston Conservatory in '09.

Olga currently resides in Boston, with her husband, Andy Bean, and is a faculty member of Newton Music Academy, where she often performs with pianist Sivan Etedgee and cellist Nicholas Dinnerstein.

For the last five seasons, Olga has played with the Plymouth Philharmonic and Cape Cod Symphony Orchestras. The highlights of the last couple of seasons of the orchestra were the collaboration with wonderful musicians such as Jon Nakamatsu (Gold prize winner of the Van Cliburn International Competition), Joshua Bell and Yo Yo Ma.

She often comes for weekends and holidays to Jaffrey Center, to visit her in-laws, Chris and Clare Bean, which is how I met Olga.

Olga will be playing at the Dublin Community Church on June 30th, the first of the summer music series, at the regular 10 am church service. The music planned is from Shubert's violin and piano works.

BARBARA SUMMERS is Director of Music at Dublin Community Church.
