Artists of Dublin on Exhibit Everywhere

BY MARGARET GURNEY

In Dublin, creativity is at an all-time high and follows a proud tradition. Although we count dozens of artists in town, we know of three who have their art on display during July in Jaffrey, Peterborough, and Dublin.

Miriam Carter's show at the Jaffrey Civic Center (40 Main St., Jaffrey; 532-6527) ends July 2 so hurry over to see her elegantly styled Wearable Feltwork. Miriam began her career more than 25 years ago and was one of the first feltmakers in the national juried craft and art show world. She has won awards throughout the country and hails from a rich textile tradition: Miriam's great uncle (Alfred Dolge) brought feltmaking for the piano industry to this country in the late 1800s. Her mother was a couture seamstress and her father worked in woolen textile manufacturing. As she and her father explored the family tradition of feltmaking, their first hat shape, the Vogue Beret, was born. It remains a strong seller in her broad offering of hat styles. Studio visits can be scheduled by appointment. You can also visit her booth at the League of NH Craftsmen Show, where she is a juried member, at Mount Sunapee from August 1 through 9. Contact Miriam at mcarterfelt@yahoo.com, 603-563-8046 or visit miriam-carter.com.

Miriam's vest and Vogue Beret are in the display cases on the first floor of the JCC.

Broke Art for All

At least four of the artists selling their wares at the Broke Art show ("50 Artists Selling Work for under $50") held at the Peterborough Town House June 13 were Dubliners.

Zebulon Dahl (Korpi Rd.) was selling his handcrafted spoons, rattles, bowls, and other assorted wooden treasures. He can be emailed at zdahl@wesleyan.edu or call 563-8140.

Lily Featherston (Church St.) was offering handmade cards that are both colorful and meaningful. She can be reached at lily-featherston.com or call 296-5184.

Claire Lowenthal's (Old Common Rd.) art was composed of paper, some of it handmade. She can be reached at 563-8288.

Tejas Moses (New Har-rville Rd.) was busy at his graduation ceremony at ConVal but he had a table showing his thrown cups and bowls in earthy glazes of blues and browns.

Dublin Public Library

Did you attend Peter Tuttle's talk at the library in April? Well, if you missed it, stop in the library to pick up a copy of his book, The Porch of Common Prayer. We also have books of his poetry in the library collection.

To Kill a Mockingbird by Harper Lee is a classic. If you haven't read it, you should consider it. In the middle of July, the author will publish Go Set a Watchman about Scout's return to Maycomb after 20 years. The library has a nice selection of books about Harper Lee, which will be on display.

If you read A Man Called Ove by F. Backman and loved it, there is a new book by F. Backman called My Grandmother asked me to tell you she's sorry.

Many books for beach and summer reading are on display throughout the library. Come in and check out all the books that you may have missed reading last summer.

Dublin Public Library's Summer Reading Program, The Golden Summer, will begin Wednesday, July 1 at 10 am. Children will meet each Wednesday through August 5 in the multi-purpose room in the lower level of the library. Dublin's program has a long history of offering activities that encompass the mix of toddlers through teens working and learning together. An abundance of kindness will be our focus as we encourage children to look at the best we all have to offer this summer. Each week new books and crafts as well as skits and fun interaction will be offered.

Summer reading is always encouraged with a display of fiction and non-fiction titles. New this summer will be a review wall encouraging children to share and recommend a book to a friend. If you enjoyed a classic such as Hans Brinker, The Mutiny on Board HMS Bounty, Treasure Island, or Robinson Crusoe, take it off the display and read a little aloud to pique someone's interest.

An introduction to our program was held on June 24 at 10 am in the lower level. Please encourage your children to enjoy one technology-free morning this summer and participate in the summer reading program.

FDPL Presents Forrest Cook

Lecture, reception, and book signing July 8.

In his new book, Money, Murder and Madness, A Banking Life, Forrest Cook explains the recent financial crisis and its origins in government errors during his own banking career, largely as deregulation took effect. Much of the banking world we see today developed over the course of his career and his book illustrates what he believes to be the origins of recent bank collapses and bailouts.

Please join us to hear Forrest's first-hand accounts of his experiences on Wednesday, July 8, at 6:30 pm, in the lower level of the DPL; this event is free and open to the public.

3rd Annual Ice Cream Social & Live Music: Wednesday, July 22, 6–8 pm (rain date July 29) will be held on the lawn behind the library. Bring the family for an old-fashioned summer evening of toe-tapping music and free Kimball Farm's greater-than-great ice cream! Bring your picnic if you wish and don't forget your lawn chairs or picnic blanket and bug spray. Music by local group "Legacy."

Library Pass Program: The Friends of the Dublin Public Library would like to remind members that the library is offering a terrific assortment of museum passes this year. The program provides free or discounted admissions to six area museums for patrons and their families to enjoy. Use your library card to sign out a pass to use on a specific date, enjoy your visit, then return the pass for another family to borrow. The 2015 museum pass list includes Cheshire Children's Museum, Keene; Currier Museum of Art, Manchester; McAuliffe-Shepard Discovery Center, Concord; Worcester Museum of Art, Worcester, MA; Ecotarium, Worcester, MA; and Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

Survey: Don't forget to fill out the Survey (light blue) from the Friends of the Dublin Public Library. You can find it online (<http://goo.gl/xj7fMC>) and it's also available from <http://dublinlibrary-friends.weebly.com> — or you can fill out the hard copy located in the entrance of the library. There is a drop box in the entry area or mail it to FDPL, PO Box 202, Dublin, NH 03444. Thank you.

Dublin Women's Club News

BY NANCY CAMPBELL

The Women's Club Beach officially opened for the season on June 29th. We thank the 20-plus hardy people who helped set up the beach for summer on a warm, sunny day.

Invitations to join the beach went out at the end of April.

Membership in the Club, which includes beach privileges, is available to anyone living in Dublin. Members and guests who use the beach must sign an acknowledgement of risk form as a requirement of our liability insurance carrier. This is an ongoing condition and we ask that you return the form that was enclosed with your invitation as soon as possible.

Dues are $125; scholarship assistance is available to individuals or families who cannot afford the dues. If you did not receive an invitation or need financial assistance, please call Nancy Campbell (563-8480) or Jill Lawler (924-7675) or contact Beach Committee members Connie Cerroni, Heather Fletcher, Shannon Carpenter or Emily Johnson.

The Club thanks those people and organizations who have generously responded to our annual appeal to help defray the costs of running the Women's Club Beach. It is because of the generosity of Dublin citizens that we are able to keep membership costs down.

Returning staff includes Liz Lawler and Polly Seymour; our weekend lifeguard is Cam Harrington, a Dublin School student and resident of Francestown. Taya Kerwin, also a Dublin School student from Hancock, will be teaching sailing.

We look forward to a warm, rain-free and safe summer.

NANCY CAMPBELL is Treasurer of the Women's Club.

Planning Board to Discuss Solar Energy Systems in Town

Public meeting August 6 at 7 pm in the Town Hall.

BY BRUCE SIMPSON

The Planning Board is considering amending the Land Use Ordinance to address the issue of solar energy uses. Interest in generating electricity and/or hot water from solar power has been increasing, as the costs of installing solar energy systems have been falling.

Solar energy can provide an environmentally friendly alternative to fossil fuels; in fact Germany, with less sunshine than NH, now generates more than half its electricity from solar. Solar energy systems are currently allowed as an accessory use, however, there are no specific regulations addressing solar power.

Several years ago we amended our ordinance to regulate the installation of large commercial wind energy systems while still allowing smaller systems designed to provide energy to individual homes or businesses. A similar approach may be appropriate for solar energy systems, guaranteeing homeowners the right to install small systems, while giving the town control over larger commercial installations so as to protect scenic views and reduce impacts on abutters.

The Planning Board will hold a public meeting on this issue on Thursday, August 6, at 7 pm in the Town Hall. Dublin residents are invited to join us for a discussion of solar energy and provide input on how Dublin can best accommodate it. Please join us.

BRUCE SIMPSON is chair of the Dublin Planning Board.

Genna Weidner and Annie Garrett-Larson are returning Lake Hosts from last year, on duty weekends from July 4 through August 23, 9 am to 5 pm. We encourage you to stop by and educate yourselves about the hazards of invasive aquatic plants and animals getting into our lake.

Satisfying Results: A Report on Knotweed Project

BY MIRIAM CARTER

For most of us, spring is a time of welcome renewal, especially after this past winter. For members of the Dublin Conservation Commission it is also a time of review. In June fellow board member Rusty Bastedo and I joined Jeff Taylor from Vegetation Services to inspect previously treated areas of Japanese Knotweed as well as to identify new areas in need of attention. The results were very satisfying.

Large stands of Knotweed on private and town-owned property have been successfully eradicated with only a small percentage of living plant remaining. A second spraying this year should be all that is needed. The soil conditions dictated the amount of attention required. Plants growing in sand are easier to eradicate than well-established plants in soil.

Properties that have been treated by the town will have to be monitored by our committee and by homeowners for future growth spurts. A great deal of attention has been given to the Knotweed patch that existed on Church Street. It has been eradicated for the most part, but we can still find areas that need spot treatments. It is wonderful to see treated areas returning to a natural state with native plants returning.

This fall we will be treating some of the largest infestations in town with hand sprayers as well as a large truck sprayer. We identified an impressive site at the old Town Pit, which is too tall and too wide to be treated by hand. We look forward to the continued success of this program and continue to encourage anyone who knows of a Japanese Knotweed infestation on private or town property to please contact the Conservation Commission.

MIRIAM CARTER is Conservation Chair; she can be reached at 603-563-8046. Her fellow board members are Rusty Bastedo, Jerry Branch, Katrina Farmer, John Morris, and Wendy White.

Tidbits from the Dublin Cemetery

BY HANK CAMPBELL

Have you ever wondered who is buried in the Dublin Cemetery or taken a walk through the Cemetery and tried to find where someone is buried?

Dublin artists buried here include Joseph Lindon Smith, George de Forest Brush, Richard Meryman, Alexander James, Gouri Ivanov-Rinov and Beatrix Sagendorph.

Did you know that the founder of Steamtown, USA, and the benefactor of Dublin Christian Academy, F. Nelson Blount, is buried here? Nelson was killed in an airplane crash near the Dublin-Marlborough town line. His grave is marked by a headstone with a train on it.

Some of the Town's early settlers are buried here as well: Thomas Morse, William and Richard Strongman, among others. Edward Sprague, the Town's second minister, and his wife are also buried here. Their graves are relatively easy to find from the Old Town Pound. Walk west toward the Lake, along the stonewall, and you will come to their large flat tablets.

Do explore the Cemetery, enjoying the view of the lake and the mountain, but please be respectful of the gravesites by remembering to pick up after your dogs and to keep them leashed.

If you leave flowers on someone's grave, please leave live flowers — artificial flowers have wires in them that could injure one of the workers or some innocent bystander if the flowers get caught in the lawn mower or string trimmer.

HANK CAMPBELL is Cemetery Superintendent.

"Dublin Horsepower" at Historical Society Museum

BY RUSTY BASTEDO

The 1841 Schoolhouse Museum, located on Dublin's Main Street, will be open from 12 to 2 pm on weekends beginning July 4 through September 6. The largest part of the Schoolhouse collections were gathered for the 1852 centennial of the Town of Dublin, with more materials gathered for celebration of the nation's 1876 centennial.

These collections allow us to feature Dublin before automobiles had been invented. How did Dublin farmers and manufacturers get their goods to market before trucks and cars? By wagon, that's how, wagons powered by six- and eight-horse teams, with a drover overseeing the journeys on New England's dirt roads.

In the deep winter snows, blown in over treeless fields, traffic would slow; mud season did the same. It was a hard life, but schedules were kept pretty well, and farmers' goods rolled from Dublin to the canals at Concord and at Manchester, then down to Boston by boat and out into the world. Dublin-made leather boots and shoes, sewn together on the farms, were found on the feet of plantation workers in the southern states, and in Caribbean sugar cane fields; Dublin farm goods found their way to world markets, sometimes via Worcester, Mass., and in exchange, palm fronds, used for making hats, were shipped to county stores by wagon.

Learn all about these pre-Civil War trades, and about others as well, this summer at the 1841 Schoolhouse Museum, located on Dublin's Main Street, starting at noon on weekends.

RUSTY BASTEDO is on the staff of the Advocate.

Honoring May Clark's Career in Education

BY MARY LOFTIS

Before May Clark became the Teaching Principal of Dublin Consolidated School 11 years ago, the library in the remodeled school had been designated the Clark Library in recognition of her ten years of service on the ConVal School Board. And years before that, May had served as a volunteer science teacher while her now-grown children attended DCS. So, May's retirement in June marked the end of a professional lifetime of dedicated and inspired service to our little elementary school.

DCS is renowned in SAU 1 for being a warm, caring and kid-centered place, and May Clark fostered that environfriends. May said she was particularly touched and surprised by the presence of former ConVal Superintendent Larry Bramblett, with whom she had worked on the School Board for nine years (five as chair), who traveled from Arizona to honor her at the gathering. In addition, she mentioned her pleasure at seeing Rick Beard, retired from the ConVal Maintenance Department, who took good care of the DCS staff for many years in addition to making furniture for the school.

DCS Teacher Emily Brnger, who worked with May throughout her tenure, said, "She has accomplished a great deal and has played many roles for various people – as a mentor, cheerleader and, most importantly, as a champion for kids. She has done it all with compassion, integrity, optimism and fortitude."

So, is May Clark really going to retire from education? She says, "Yes!" She's looking forward to resting, working on her house and visiting her family (including four grandchildren) without the constraint of the school calendar. The change of pace will be welcome but she said a lot of tears were shed when she said good-bye to the DCS community.

MARY LOFTIS is on the staff of the Advocate.

ment. Despite a prodigious workload (in essence two full-time jobs: administrator and teacher), she never seemed harried or preoccupied. Her intense attention (and often that high-beam smile) was directed at whatever person, large or small, she was talking to at the moment.

May said she loved being a "hometown principal," and is thrilled that another local educator, Nicole Pease, will be succeeding her next year. Nicole was one of May's many admirers who attended a party in her honor on May 28. That festive event, orchestrated by administrative assistant (and May Clark fan) Jo-ann Hopkins, included students, former students, colleagues, administrators, parents, and

May welcomed former Superintendent Larry Bramblett to her retirement party.

Ken McAleer's Contributions Much Appreciated

BY MARY LOFTIS

Ken McAleer joined the Dublin Recreation Committee in the early nineties and he's been orchestrating Dublin Day and serving up hot dogs after the Memorial Day parade ever since. But now Ken has closed his long-time business, Video Headquarters in Keene, and he and his wife Linda are moving full-time to Flagler Beach, Florida, a small town that Ken characterizes as similar to Dublin (but with different winter weather).

Recently Ken reminisced about the "fun committee" that he helped revive to bring the town together. He recalled several memorable features of Dublin Day: the Riff Raft Regatta boat race and the police vs. fire softball games. During other seasons the Rec Committee sponsored Halloween parties, snow fort building events and Easter egg hunts – and Ken was always at the helm. For the past few years, Vira Elder has chaired the Rec Committee, and Jen Bergeron is co-chair.

Ken said that he will miss the town and the "awesome" people he worked with over the years. He said he was initially inspired to get involved at the urging of the late John Harris, who told him that people should not just live in a town; they should contribute to it.

We wish Ken and Linda a happy retirement – with much appreciation for all Ken did as the Rec Committee's fearless leader. He certainly took John's advice to heart!

Gifts of the Garden

BY CATHY CARABELLO

Ten years ago, when we at DCP were envisioning what our space in Dublin Village Park might look like, the outside component was as important as the inside.

We were thrilled to have Chuck Simpson, local landscaper and alumna dad, design butterfly gardens into the outside landscape. It was the perfect setting for bringing our butterfly learning to life every fall when we studied the lifecycle of the Monarchs.

Having space for raised-bed gardens was important, too. We started with one bed with the idea that we would assess the interest level of the children. They couldn't get enough! They had more ideas for vegetables to plant than we had room to accommodate. So, thanks to a grant from the Garden Club of Dublin two years ago, we were able to add a second raised bed and fill them both with organic soil from Ideal Compost in Peterborough. All of the vegetables we have grown since, both from seed and from starters, are organic.

Since the produce helps supplement our morning and afternoon snack offerings, the children dictate what we plant. When we were discussing the garden early this spring, the children decided we also needed to plant some vegetables for our classroom guinea pig — so we planted lots of lettuce and kale.

Our morning routine includes time in the garden. I take a couple children at a time to plant and water. They beg to be chosen so we rotate who gets to go and ideally every child has garden time every week.

As the seeds begin to sprout, the excitement grows. The garden harvests begin in early summer and continue well into the fall.

"Inch by inch and row by row," we hope that through this teaching, we are laying the foundation for healthy eating that will last a lifetime. The gifts of the garden are many!

Dublin Community Preschool offers a summer garden camp week for children ages three to seven called "Dig In!" The camp is offered during the week of July 6 through July 10. For more information, please email us at cathy@dublinpreschool.org or call 563-8508.

Concert at Dublin School

Join us for a special evening of traditional New Orleans jazz with Aurora Nealand and the Royal Roses at the Fountain Arts Building, Dublin School in Dublin, NH. This will be an outdoor event, weather permitting, Friday, July 3, 7:30 pm at the Fountain Arts Building on the Dublin School campus. The concert is co-sponsored by The Walden School, the Monadnock Folklore Society, and the Dublin School and is free and open to the public.

In last month's Advocate, we reported on the ConVal students from Dublin who traveled to Cleveland, OH, to participate in a band and chorus competition and visit the sites around the city. We have three more student names to add to that roster — Gillian Thebodeau, Allyson Boyd, and Grace Wirein also participated.

Dublin School Crew Thriving

BY BRAD BATES

The sport of rowing has emerged as one of the more popular sports at Dublin School. Beginning as a club sport almost a decade ago, rowing has grown to involve a quarter of the 150 students on campus. The school made a decision two years ago to create an endurance sports program, which took advantage of the school's perfect location for running, mountain biking, cross country skiing and rowing. Few boarding schools are as geographically positioned in that sweet spot where the snow is great in the winter and yet there is still an opportunity to get out on a shallow, ice-free lake in the early spring.

Thanks to the Boy Scouts and Camp Wanocksett, Dublin rows on Thorndike Pond, which makes for outstanding wind-protected rowing. Dublin rows in "fours," boats designed for four rowers with a single oar. The boat is steered and coached by a coxswain who lies down in the bow of the boat and speaks to the crew through a microphone.

This spring's crew season turned out to be the school's best ever. Under the inspirational coaching of Rich Connell, Blair Granum, Andy Hungerford, and Sarah Mead, the Dublin crews swept the podiums at the Granite State four-oared shell championships, qualifying five of the boats to compete in the newly created National Scholastic Rowing Championships in Virginia.

Dublin was fortunate to race against some of the best crews from the ten or so states that sent their champion scholastic teams. Dublin School once again had dominant performances with the Girls' Second Varsity four taking the bronze medal, the Boys' Varsity lightweight taking gold, and the Boys' Varsity taking bronze.

The Boys lightweight decided to put their training to the test at the USRowing Northeast Regional qualifier in the hopes of finishing in the top three to book a ticket to Florida for the Youth National Championships. After two days of racing in Lowell, MA, the four earned a silver medal and a trip to Sarasota in June to compete against the top 30 lightweight fours in the nation.

The crew just returned from a highly successful trip to Florida where – after a thrilling final – they finished in fifteenth overall. Four out of the five rowers are returning as juniors next year. The school breaks ground on its first boathouse in August and hopes to have it fully operational for the opening of the 2016 season. Dublin residents Tatum Wilson (Girls' Varsity four), Jesse Garrett-Larsen (Boys' Varsity four), and Calvin Bates (Boys' lightweight four) rowed for Dublin School this spring. Tatum recently won the school's female athlete of the year award for her accomplishments in running, skiing and rowing.

Hiroshi Land Celebration in Dublin

BY MARGARET GURNEY

The Hiroshi Conservation Land Celebration was held June 14 on property acquired from the estate of Hiroshi Hayashi, who died May 17, 2012. The Harris Center for Conservation Education and the Peterborough Conservation Commission collaborated to protect more than 100 acres that run along Nubanusit Brook and the new trail, blazed along the brook, is now open to the public.

Jeremy Wilson, Executive Director of the Harris Center, welcomed the hikers and introduced Francie von Mertens who spoke about the property acquisition as top priority due to its variety of pristine natural habitats. Eric Masterson of the Harris Center and Carl von Mertens planted six chestnut trees on the front field, assisted by children who attended. On a two-mile hike on the Loop Trail, Francie discussed plants and wildlife and Jeremy pointed out little-known facts about forest trees. A kiosk provides trail maps and other points of interest.

Hiroshi Hayashi, whose home was on the land on Brush Brook Rd. (Rte. 137), was the highly regarded owner-chef of Latacarta Restaurant in Peterborough for many years. At home, he and his wife, Masuko, ran The Monadnock School of Natural Cooking and Philosophy, where they taught cooking classes. The Hayashis' partner and dear friend, Barbara Sustick, was on hand to see Hiroshi's dream of conserving his land come to fruition.

Directions: Parking and trailhead are 2.1 miles north of Carr's Store on Rte. 137, east side. To read more about the history of the land, visit <http://peterboroughopenspace.org/success-stories/hiroshi-hayashi-land.html>

Another New Part-Time Officer Joins the Ranks

BY MARGARET GURNEY

Chris LaBrecque is Dublin's most recently sworn-in part-time police officer, the second of two positions to replace one full-time position left vacant by Dan Cheshire, who was called into the military. Officer LaBrecque, a full-time police officer in Jaffrey, is excited to work in this town under Chief Sullivan (Advocate, April 2014), and alongside Officers Tim Suokko (Advocate, February 2013) and Melissa Hetrick (Advocate, May 2015).

His approach to law enforcement is more along the detective lines. He says, "Some police officers are more motor-vehicle oriented, catching DWIs and so forth, but mine is more investigative. I enjoy meeting people, working the day and evening shifts. Often I am asked to be present in custody transfers or when an employee is getting fired. I'd rather be there to prevent anything than after something has happened."

Officer LaBrecque graduated from University of New England (Biddeford, ME) in 2006 and promptly got a job in law enforcement in Farmington, NH. He majored in Psychobiology (animal behavior), and minored in Psychology and Sociology; his intention was to enter canine training for the police but things worked out differently. He graduated from the NH Police Standards & Training Council (PSTC), aka The Academy, in March 2007.

Officer LaBrecque met his wife Casey at UNE and worked as a detective for the Kingston Police Department from 2010 to 2013. Their five-year-old son Logan was present at his father's swearing-in at the Dublin Police Department on May 4th.

Now that the LaBrecque family has moved into their home in Rindge, they'll be busy with Logan and their new 11-month-old twin boys. "I'm glad we settled in this region. It reminds me of up north. These are small towns, everyone knows everyone, and it's wooded." Officer LaBrecque grew up in Dummer, NH, north of Berlin. He is pleased with the school district (Jaffrey-Rindge) and they plan on raising their family here.

Officer LaBrecque enjoys instructing, and is trained to do so in OC (Mace-like) spray, Tasers, batons; he plans to add firearms and defensive tactics to his resume in the future. Like Officer Hetrick, Officer LaBrecque will keep his full-time job as a Jaffrey policeman. He has completed his field training by Officer Suokko with a tour of our town's roads, water sources, schools, etc. as well as areas of concern for parking. He has learned the policies of the department, and has already begun meeting townspeople, starting at the Dublin General Store, of course.

As a part-timer with a full-time commitment elsewhere and three young sons, Officer LaBrecque says, "I will try to give this town as many hours as I can." He is certainly looking forward to it.

DCF Awards Graduates

BY ROSEMARY MACK

The Dublin Community Foundation completed its funding for the fiscal year, which runs from June 2014 through May 2015. This year the Foundation provided funding to assist Dublin youth in the following programs: the Dublin Playground Summer Program, DCS/PTO Literacy Program, Dublin Community Preschool, Dublin Women's Club, DCS Ski Program, Children and the Arts, Camp Takodah, and NH Dance Institute in support of its Dublin participants.

in the Healing Arts Gallery at Monadnock Community Hospital from June 4 through August 15. The show, Déjà Vu, includes many of her new collage work made from “old” papers: handwritten journals, aged text, vintage business forms and school notebooks, antique photo albums and other found printed matter. Jane’s bio explains, “Paper is the common element in all of my work. I like giving refuse — made either by Mother Nature or human ingenuity — a second chance.” Jane Simpson is a state-juried member of the League of NH Craftsmen, an I-Park fellow, and a self-employed picture framer since 1989. She can be reached at onejane3@gmail.com or call 924-7098.

During July, Maryann Mullett’s award-winning pastel paintings will be featured at the Dublin Community Center. Her exuberant compositions are colorful and heartwarming in their treatment of everyday subjects. Excerpted from her artist bio, Maryann says: “Inspiration comes to me from nature. Whether it be close-up views of flora, luminous berries and vegetables, or birds and animals, composition and the play of light and shadows are always in consideration.” A reception for the artist will be held at the Dublin Community Center on Tuesday, July 7, from 5 to 7 pm. Maryann’s brother-in-law musician Scott Mullett will provide entertainment. ## July at the Players

BY FRED LEVENTHAL

The Peterborough Players will be performing Intimate Exchanges by Alan Ayckbourn, Britain's most prolific contemporary playwright, from July 1 to 12. Nominated for an Olivier Award and a Drama Desk Award, this domestic comedy features Kraig Swartz and Beverly Ward, who delighted audiences in 2014's Last of the Red Hot Lovers. In this comedy of chance, the two actors play ten different characters, and the audience determines the outcome from a choice of alternative endings.

On July 15, Outside Mullingar by John Patrick Shanley will begin a two-week run, ending July 26. Shanley — whose play Doubt, performed at the Players in 2008, earned the Pulitzer Prize — sets his new drama in rural Ireland. This touching romantic comedy, nominated for a Tony Award in 2014, depicts two neighboring families whose eccentric offspring are approaching 40 and are watching the years slip away.

Despite a land feud simmering between their families, these lonely souls prove that it is never too late to take a chance on love. The New York Times, which called the play Shanley's finest work since Doubt, praised its "dark reflections on the unsatisfactory nature of life and the thorns of love." The cast of Players' favorites includes Tom Frey and Bridget Beirne as the inhibited lovers and Michael Page and Dale Hodges as their respective parents.

The classic farce, Charley's Aunt, previously seen at the Players in 1941 and 1979, will be presented from July 29 to August 9 in a production directed by Chuck Morey. The comedy centers on two Oxford undergraduates, Jack and Charley, who persuade their friend to pose as Charley's aunt (played by Kraig Swartz) thereby providing them with an appropriate chaperone for a luncheon with their girlfriends. Chaos ensues when the real aunt appears. Originally produced in 1892, Charley's Aunt enjoyed record-breaking runs in London and New York and has been revived continually and adapted for films and musicals.

FRED LEVENTHAL, a Dublin resident, is a Trustee of the Peterborough Players.

Seminar on Estate Planning

69th Season of the Amos Fortune Forum Is Under Way

The Amos Fortune Forum was organized in 1946 to take advantage of the many widely known speakers on subjects of public interest and importance who live in and visit the Monadnock Region. It was felt that most people would welcome the opportunity to cooperate in this Forum, each talking on whatever subject he or she considered most interesting and timely. The lectures are a continuing tribute to Amos Fortune, one of Jaffrey's most distinguished citizens, and are given without compensation by members of the Monadnock community, their relatives and friends.

July 10 – Nick Capasso, Director of the Fitchburg Art Museum, will present "Creating a Community-Oriented Art Museum."

July 17 – Jermome Schulz, Ph.D., Clinical Neuropsychologist, covers "Nowhere to Hide: How Stress is Putting the Brains of Students with Learning Disabilities and ADHD (and others) at risk and what we can do about it."

July 24 – Rebecca Eaton, OBE, Producer, Masterpiece Theater will discuss Masterpiece: Before, During, and After Downton Abbey.

July 31 – Ellen Widmer, Wellesley College Professor of East Asian Studies, will speak about "Trip toward Tomorrow: A History of Women's Rights in China."

The Amos Fortune Forum lectures are held in the Meeting-house located in Historic Jaffrey Center, 2 miles west of downtown Jaffrey, NH, on Fridays promptly at 8 pm. There is no charge for admission. Visit www.amosfortune.com for details.

Viviparous Quadrupeds of North America

BY TOM WARREN

While John Audubon (1785-1851) is best known for his bird paintings, he is also known for 150 paintings of animals in North America. One hundred of these prints, a generous donation by the Bastedo family to New Hampshire Audubon, are currently on display at the Currier Museum in Manchester from May 23 through August 30.

Audubon was descended from a French sea captain and retired Navy officer who sent his only son to America to avoid conscription by Napoleon's Army.

Audubon's father, Jean Audubon, owned a sugar plantation in Santo Domingo, now Haiti. His mother was Jean Rabin, a 27-year-old chambermaid who died months after his birth. His father's true wife back in Nantes, France, adopted Audubon and raised him as her own son. Audubon arrived in America in 1803, his illegitimate birth a closely guarded secret.

Audubon's adoptive mother described him as "the handsomest boy in Nantes, but perhaps not the most studious."

From an early age he was fascinated by birds. He was gifted musically and artistically, playing the flute and violin and also drawing. He also excelled at fencing, riding and shooting. He was an especially gifted skater on the winter ponds outside of Philadelphia where he settled.

Audubon worked on the animal paintings in the 1840s after completing his Birds of America. In 1843, he took an adventurous trip west of the Mississippi to paint and write life histories of each of the animals he observed.

New Hampshire Audubon and the Currier Museum have collaborated on this exhibit to develop programs that focus on Audubon's artistic techniques, scientific methods and adventurous spirit.

When his skills diminished by failing eyesight and dementia, the remaining paintings were completed by his son John Woodhouse Audubon. The prints used the new technology of lithography invented in Munich in 1796 and used in the United States by 1838.

The Grey Fox is one of the most beautifully drawn of all the animals, an increasingly common animal here in Dublin in recent years with a pair raising three kits under a wood shed on Charcoal Road in 2014.

New Hampshire Audubon, the Currier Museum and citizens interested in art, natural history and the environment are most appreciative of the Bastedo family's generous donation of these Audubon prints to New Hampshire Audubon years ago.

TOM WARREN is Dublin's resident ornithologist, and serves as a trustee of both the Harris Center and the Audubon Society.

A NOTE OF THANKS

The Monadnock Area Food Pantry wishes to thank the Dublin community for donations of food. Meredith White reports that so far this year the Dublin Community Church has donated 635 pounds of food. Also, the Food Pantry acknowledges the efforts of the staff at the Dublin Post Office, whose drive yielded 350 pounds of food. It's very helpful and very much appreciated.
